Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-13 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Claims 1-9 were previously allowed, claim 10 is now allowed because the prior arts of record do not teach the amended limitation citing if the frame is a transition frame between lossy and lossless frames mixing the compression as recited in the claims.

Claims 15-16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 14 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gao (2002/003,5470).

As to claim 14, Gao teaches a method for creating a time domain signal to switch from frequency domain codec to time domain codec, the method comprising;

Applying a segmenting process for dividing the samples into window of frames of an audio signal;

Performing MDCT transform, analogous to lapped transform, on the input audio signal to generate a frequency domain signal;

Performing IMDCT inverse transform on the signal to obtain a time domain signal; and using a time codec to compress the time domain signal without any loss to the signal (Par.0042-0043; Fig.5)

As to claim 17, Gao teaches where the time domain codec is uses coed excited linear prediction coding (CELP) (Par.0045).

Response to Arguments

The amendment as well as applicant's arguments/remarks filed on 3/21/08 have been fully considered but they failed to mention claims 14 and 17.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
